Beware Of The "Knockout Game"

A disturbing new "game" that is sweeping the nation has reportedly caused deaths in Missouri, New York, and New Jersey. Perpetrators have dubbed the brutal practice as the "knockout game" in which young people prey upon unsuspecting adults and try to randomly knock out strangers with one punch called the 'one hitter quitter.' If the victim is not knocked out after the initial hit, the participants continue to assault them until they are unconscious or they escape. The trend has gained popularity through social media with accomplices going online boasting about their recent assaults. In many instances, the attacks have been caught on camera and are later posted online.

who was walking his dog. The 63 year old man observed a man run by him and a second man walking towards him. He was then punched in the mouth, knocking him to the ground. LMTPD is attempting to determine if the latest incident is related to a similar attack that occurred in September 2013.

On November 11, 2013, a Cumberland County, Pennsylvania man was the victim of what was believed to be the "knockout game." The man was asked by a youth if he had a cigarette and when he reached into his pocket, he was punched several times by three or four individuals. On November 14, 2013, authorities arrested a 15 year old in connection with the assault.

It is recommended that you do the following:

- Be vigilant and aware of your surroundings.
- While walking the streets, sidewalks, or other public areas avoid wearing earphones or ear buds, talking on your cellphone or playing with your phone, all of which divert your attention from your surroundings.
- Avoid large groups of teens or young adults and if encountered, attempt to walk away or move to the other side of the street. If you believe you are in immediate danger, call 911
- Immediately report all criminal activity and suspicious behavior to your local police department for investigation.

Bucknell Makes A Difference At Evangelical's Breast Health Center

The Bucknell Chapter of Colleges Against Cancer (CAC) recently presented a check of $1,000 for the fight against breast cancer to Evangelical Community Hospital's Andrea Bertram, Director of the Thyra M. Humphreys Center for Breast Health. The funds were raised through registrations for the Paint Bucknell Pink 5K Race held on Sunday, September 29, 2013, along with t-shirt and tank top sales. Organized by the Bucknell CAC chapter, the event empowered walkers and runners to complete the course around Bucknell's campus.

During the check presentation, the students were able to view the mammography technology available at the Center for Breast Health. Annual mammograms for women over the age of 40 allow for early detection of breast cancer and a greater chance of survival from the disease. Bertram commented on the increased number of mammograms the Center has been able to perform yearly and the fact that 2 to 3 new cases of breast cancer are detected weekly. The donated funds will be used to support the mammogram program for the underinsured and uninsured, assuring much needed annual breast exams are available to those in the local community who cannot afford them.

Colleges Against Cancer is a nationwide collaboration of college students, faculty, and staff dedicated to eliminating cancer by working to implement the programs and mission of the American Cancer Society. With hundreds of chapters nationwide, CAC is showing the world that young people care and want to make a difference.

For more information about the Thyra M. Humphreys Center for Breast Health or to schedule a mammogram, call 570-522-4200.

Bayberry Candles for the Holidays

Do you burn bayberry candles at Christmas and/or New Years?? My mother used them at home and I still enjoy them. I’ve been researching some information about how they came into use in the early days of our country.

The traditions about the use of bayberry candles go back to the earliest settlers of the colonies. In late fall, as the animals were slaughtered, women would begin making candles for the following year. The average home would require approximately 200 - 400 candles to illuminate the home for a year. Animal fat was collected throughout the year but most was accumulated when the animals were butchered.

Candle making was grueling and smelly work. Tallow can become quite foul after a few weeks and it became much worse after several months! So especially in the more affluent homes, the women would make candles from beeswax or bayberry wax, as they had a more fragrant aroma which was far sweeter than anything from an animal.

The early colonists had found that the berry-like fruit of the bayberry bush which grew in the sandy soils along the north-eastern coast of America and even around Lake Erie, is crusted with a greenish-white wax. The women would gather bushels of the bayberries from the five to seven foot shrubs and boil them for several hours. This heating process allowed the waxy substance to seep from the berries and because of its natural buoyancy, the wax floated to the top of the kettle. As it cooled, it was skimmed off much the same way we skim beef or chicken fat from cooled broth today. It took approximately 15 pounds of bayberries to render one pound of wax. These bayberry candles burned longer, cleaner and brighter, but because it required so much work to make them, they were often saved for special occasions.

Over the years burning them on Christmas and New Year’s Eve/night became a tradition. You were to light the candle on the eve of the holiday and allow it to burn completely down to the ‘socket.’ Colonial folklore states that if you burn a new bayberry candle on Christmas and New Year’s eves, you’d have health, wealth and prosperity in the coming year. The old sayings:

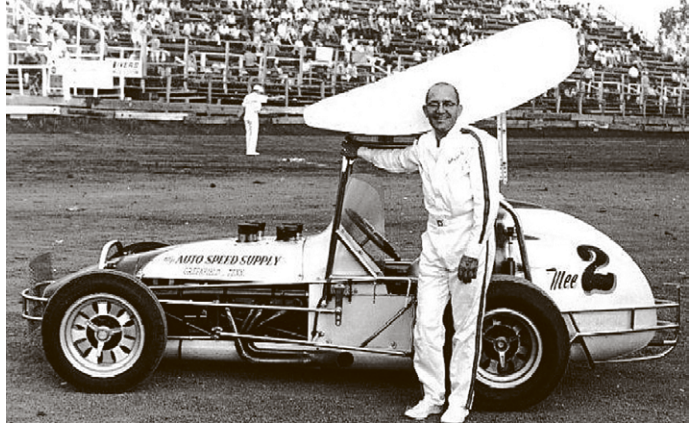

“A bayberry candle burnt to the socket brings health to the home and wealth to the pocket.” or “A bayberry candle burnt to the socket brings food to the larder and gold to the pocket.”

Well, as you’ve seen, I’m taking a break from the one and two room school discussion this week, but do continue to send in your comments about them! I’d love to hear from some of our Amish and Mennonite readers about their school days.

Another thought a reader sent to me, regarding Christmas gifts... How many gifts that you received as a child do you remember? OR do you remember the “good times” associated with the holidays more? I think she’s right... as I think about it, I mostly remember getting the tree (finding the perfect one in the woods on our property) and decorating it and the games we played, the meals and get-togethers with friends and relatives, more than the “things” I received. What do YOU think? Jean Markley Keiser, 1133 Carolina Ave., West Chester, PA 19380 bjkaiser@cheerful.com

Christmas With “The Arkansas Traveler”

By Gerald Hodges/the Racing Reporter

NOTE: Each year during Christmas we break from our traditional NASCAR racing news in order to bring a story that blends in with the holiday season. This year’s story comes from Bobby Ward, an early sprint car racer from Arkansas. While he was not well known along the east coast, he was a household name among racing fans in the Midwest. When Ward showed up at the race track, he was always the “one to beat.”

Bobby had a stroke this past year. He is doing well, but he and his wife sold their “homeplace,” and moved to Conway, Arkansas, so he could be closer to a medical facility.

“I think that sometimes people overvalue the things of Christmas, and forget to really focus on their friends and the actual holiday season,” said Ward. “I certainly have more material things now, which I thoroughly enjoy, but as far as true happiness goes, I’m not so sure that we weren’t just as happy back in my early years.”

Ward was born in 1935 in the community of Bee Branch, Arkansas, about 40 miles north of Little Rock, in a one-room log cabin. His racing career began in 1956.

He raced hard, traveled long distances, won many, many championships, accumulated a large fan following, and became known as “The Arkansas Traveler.”

“Christmas for us was very light,” continued Ward. “Mom and dad, and sometimes all the family would go out on Christmas Eve and cut down a tree. It wasn’t always a cedar tree. Sometimes it was a pine. After getting it set up in the house we would decorate it. The decorations consisted of some colorful ribbon that had been cut in strips, and strings of popcorn.

“That was all the decorations we used. There were no lights, or anything shiny.

“My three sisters and I each got one toy. That’s the only time of the year we got any store bought toys. But I don’t ever remember a Christmas when we didn’t get that one toy.

“On my sixth birthday I had asked my mom for some type of Tinker Toy. On Christmas Eve, I happened by the bedroom and saw a Tinker Toy sticking out from under the bed. Mom saw me, and said, “Son, would you believe that Santa Claus came by earlier today and left this for you? And he might even come back again tonight.”

Well, I believed her, and sure enough, the next morning Santa had paid us a second visit and left some oranges, apples, and cookies.

“Our Christmas dinner consisted of chicken and dumplings, and dressing, along with ham and some other vegetables, plus a cake and pie.

“We never had turkey or anything you had to buy.

“Around Christmastime, daddy would kill some hogs and cure the meat. He would take some type sugar cure and put it all over the ham, and inject it all around the bone. This not only flavored the meat, but preserved it. The meat would keep in a smoke house for at least a month.

“In my very early childhood, we had Christmas by ourselves. We lived a pretty good way from our neighbors, and traveling in our wagon would have taken too long.

“As I got older, we moved and dad bought a car, and we visited my father’s mother and dad on Christmas. I had a cousin that always got lots of toys and we were allowed to play with them while the rest of the family visited.

“I never said anything to mother and dad about the single toy I got, because I knew how things were with us.

“During the year, I was able to make homemade cars out of blocks of wood.

“We used our imagination and what we had, to entertain ourselves.

“We always ate well, even outside the holidays. We had pork, along with fried potatoes, pinto beans, and corn bread. Every Thursday night we had corn bread and buttermilk.

“There was no electricity in my early years. Our traditional lighting was a simple kerosene lamp. One day my dad brought home a new type of kerosene lamp, called a “Latin Lamp.” It gave a much brighter light, and that was the first time my sister and I had been able to do our homework together at the kitchen table.

“Sometimes at night I would get a glass of milk, and only drink half of it. I would leave the rest of it setting in the kitchen. When it was really cold, the next morning I would have a half glass of ice cream.

“When we moved from Bee Branch to Shirley, Arkansas, there wasn’t any boys around to play with, just girls. Mother made me a doll on her old treadmill sewing machine, and filled it with straw and rags, so I would have something to play with.

“It might seem funny now, but I had the time of my life playing with that doll, along with my three sisters and the other girls.

“Whenever my dad took corn to the grist mill to get it ground into meal and grits, I always went along. The corn was yellow. We never raised any white corn like they have now.

“My childhood was good. I thoroughly enjoyed growing up with my sisters and we were a loving family. We were also a working family. We worked hard, and loved each other. We didn’t go around hugging each other, saying, “I love you,” but we all shared a bond of love.

“I don’t ever remember a day growing up when I didn’t feel loved.

“I tried to race everyone just like I would want him to race me.

“I didn’t always win, but I knew it was important for me to try and finish each race. I think in order to enjoy our success we’ve got to put forth effort. The races that I enjoyed winning the most were those I really had to work for.

“Greater labor leads to greater love.

“To maximize our present enjoyment in life we might need to give up some of the comforts an easy life style brings us. Instead of buying a present ready-made this Christmas, why not see what kind of physical chore you could do for your neighbor. Instead of buying a pre-cooked pie or cake for Christmas dinner, why not bake it yourself?

“Christmas happiness can still be found. You just need to know how and where to look.”

Students Rallied To Raise Money For Disaster Relief

Students from Bucknell University's Filipino Club headed by Vincent-Paul Manalo; the diversity committee of the Bucknell Student Government headed by Tina Tiongson and the Sigma Chi Fraternity joined forces in late November to raise money and awareness for the typhoon that ripped across the islands of the Philippines. Advisers from International Student Services (ISS) and Multicultural Student Services (MSS) were also involved with the event called: "Passion for the Philippines: a Fundraiser" Held on November 21st. students invited different individuals and musical groups to perform, as well as dancers from various clubs on campus, to help publicize the fundraiser. Judy Anne Romero, one of the organizers said "During the night we also had a moment of silence and Quinn Blanco and I talked about the situation in the Philippines which put things into perspective for the people who were there. It was short notice but heaps of people came out to support us, including a few faculty members." she added "Quinn and I are international students from the Philippines and so this event really hit us and it was imperative that we do something about it, every little thing counts."

In discussing which organization to make the beneficiary of money raised; the students had conversations with friends who were actually affected in the Philippines, they were told that the Red Cross presence was great in the places that were hit the hardest. And so they chose to donate what would eventually turn out to be almost $1,700 to the American Red Cross

Upon accepting the donation Natalie Kuhns, SUN Area Chapter Administrator and Volunteer Coordinator said, "This was a wonderful surprise for us, these young people deserve a great deal of credit; they worked very quickly to raise a substantial amount of money that is definitely needed in the Philippines."

"Kids Can Cook" Workshop Hosted Union County Branch YMCA

Triston Herrold, right, adds turkey pepperonis to his "Veggie Patch Pizza" while his brother Jamison considers what other ingredients he might enjoy. The boys participated with their mother and grandmother in a "Kids Can Cook" workshop hosted by the Union County Branch YMCA in partnership with Weis Markets.

Weis dietitian, Beth Stark shared healthy meal planning tips, basic cooking techniques, tips for involving kids in the kitchen, go-to recipe ideas, and budget shopping strategies. The workshop was attended by nine families and was held at the First Lutheran Church, in Mifflinburg.

Mr. Scott Zimmerman, principal of the Mifflinburg Intermediate School, has recently revealed the November recipients of the Kiwanis-sponsored ASPIRES awards. The students in grades three through five are chosen by their homeroom teachers because they have demonstrated positive behaviors that are named in the school's anti-bullying programs. Each student will receive a special certificate and cash award at the final assembly in May.

Delaney Kraus, daughter of Danielle and John Kraus of Mifflinburg, is in Mrs. Donmoyer's third grade class. She has a younger sister and is described by her mother as "a kind and loving person". Danielle's favorite class is Keyboarding and she likes to draw, participate in Gymnastics and basketball and also belongs to the Girl Scouts. She collects Disney pins and would like to someday become a Gymnastics coach.

Rylynn Long, daughter of Ashlee and Brad Swartz and Ryan and Buffie Long, is in Mrs. Hick's fourth grade. She has three siblings and likes both Music and Gym. Rylynn will be singing in the choir at the upcoming holiday concert. She likes to play "school" and soccer. Rylynn hopes to become a nurse.

In Mrs. Hoy's fifth grade, Cade Dressler is being recognized. He is the son of Danielle and Jason Dressler of Mifflinburg and he has a younger brother. His favorite class is Gym. Cade plays football for the Eagles and baseball for the Orioles and likes to collect sports and travel pins. He would like to become an engineer someday.

Kiwanis is "an organization of volunteers dedicated to changing the world one child and one community at a time". The club provides many opportunities to help the local youth as well as those throughout the world. Anyone interested in joining or finding out more is welcome to attend a meeting on Monday nights at 6PM at the Carriage Corner.
